

At-Home AUP

Dear Parents/Guardians,

High expectations and rules are not only important for your student just at school, but they are also very important at home. For my classroom I implement an Acceptable Use Policy (AUP). This AUP allows me to explain my rules and guidelines for my classroom to both you and your student. I highly encourage you to come up with an AUP for your home. This would allow your student to see and understand your expectations for them at home. I have created a template for you to use, but feel free to add to or take away whatever you'd like. This is not required. At the bottom of this document, I have provided an example of a rule and consequence you could use in your own AUP. It is simply a resource that can be used at school and at home. I hope you find this useful as well!

-Ms. Ashley

Rule & Consequence Example:

iPads are only allowed for one hour after school. If you stay on it longer than this, you will not have permission to use it again until you have a complete understanding of the rule.
