- Types of Software: Tools because this is something that would be used to create a graphic organizer, which is an assistive use for the classroom.

- Curriculum: This could be used as a method of creating a graphic organizer for the purposes of showing structuring, or for students to show they properly understand the classification of something.

- Cost: Free

- Software Description: This is a basic tool that allows you to create a structured graphic organizer, create correlation between the subjects, connect them, and reorganize as needed. It is quite basic but easy to use. I believe that it would be an excellent classroom tool if you need something that is easy to learn and use.

- Impressions: I personally do not like the application simply because of how basic it is. Having something to use that is more like impressions would be better in my opinion because it has much more editing options. The only use that I could determine for my classroom would be a quick, one day project where students needed to create a basic graphic organizer.

- Pass Review? Yes, it is usable although not efficient or expansive.

- Pass Evaluation? No simply because of how basic the application is. I do not think I would use this particular one in my classroom.
