

1. Name: Kahoot!

URL: <https://kahoot.com/>

Description: Kahoot is an online website that allows teachers and students to create games. Kahoot games can assess knowledge in a fun way. A kahoot is like an online quiz that students all take at the same time. It has fun music and colors. This website is an awesome way to make assessment fun!

How I plan on using it: I plan on using Kahoot as an assessment tool in my classroom. Kahoot games are fun and engaging. I hope this will motivate my students to really try on these quizzes. Kahoots will be awesome to use for vocabulary review, spelling, and content review.

2. Name: Powtoons

URL: <http://www.powtoon.com>

Description: Powtoons is an online tool in which students and teachers can create short videos and presentations with animations, voice recordings, illustrations, and text. This online tool is easy to use, and a great way to keep students motivated.

How I plan on using it: I plan on using Powtoons as a way for students to exhibit their learning. Students can create videos and presentations over topics we cover in class. Students can specialize on certain aspects of the topics or the whole topic and create a video or presentation to demonstrate their understanding. This will be an excellent summative assessment source.

3. Name: Storyjumper

URL: <https://www.storyjumper.com/>

Description: Storyjumper allows students and teachers to create virtual books! This is an awesome online tool to help students discover themselves as writers. This website is easy to use and has a lot of options.

How I plan on using it: I think Storyjumper would be excellent for quick writing, freewriting, and even publishing other types of writing done in class. This website opens a lot of doors for instruction. I can have students create an eBook to exhibit their learning of content, or I can have them create them as advice books over topics. There are endless possibilities with this website. Ultimately, I would use this website for students to publish their masterpieces. I would use this site to help my students see themselves as writers!
