

- Title: QR Scanner and QR Code
- Version: 1.5.1
- Publisher: Farhana Kabir
- Target Audience: 9+, but this is just because of possible QR codes that could be scanned and bring up inappropriate content. With proper supervision (which there would be within the classroom), this would be appropriate for 5+.
- Type: QR Reader and Creator
- Curriculum: Any—this could be used in any curriculum or subject whatsoever to get students' attention or share material or content between students and teachers in a more personal-discovery manner.
- Possible environments and why: This software would be excellent for any sort of scavenger hunt to bring content to life. It can also be used to have stories read to students, or have other audio given to them individually through the iPads. The possibilities here are only limited by your imagination!
- Cost: Free, but there is a limit to how much you can use it and there are ads, so you can pay anywhere from $1.99 to $3.99 to have a combination of those premium features, such as more QR scans and removing ads.
- Summary: The software is simple; it opens to a QR reader, and you can switch to a different page to create a QR code that links to a URL, text, or a photo. Then, you can share this QR code with others after titling it.
- Impressions: This app is simple and easy to use, and is quick to create and scan QR codes. It's versatile. You are limited on how much you can use it, but a subscription would probably be worth it!
- Pass/Fail: Pass! This app is excellent and can be used in a lot of ways.
