

Philosophy of Education

I believe that teachers are one of the biggest role models to students. Students need someone that they can rely on and someone that they can go to for help and it is usually teachers who are the ones that these students go to. Teachers do not only teach, but they are also someone that is important to these students and sometimes teachers do not realize that. As a future educator, it is my desire to help kids succeed in as many ways as possible and help them in school, but also help them grow in life and emotionally.

I believe that the students are our future. Students need education so they can grow up to be something and be successful in life. I believe that school is important in our society. If students did not go to school, or have anyone to teach them, then these students would not be able to have jobs and would not get to be what they wanted to be. Teachers are important because even starting at preschool, they are learning things that they will take with them and use when they are adults, and if it was not for teachers, then they would not know those things.

I believe that students learn in different ways. Students can learn by hearing, seeing, and doing. I believe that us as teacher should incorporate all the types of learning into our lessons for the students to be successful. Some students cannot learn a certain way and it will cause them to fall behind because they do not understand the material. When the students are working with their learning style, then are more successful and they understand the material and it becomes easy to them.

I believe that teachers should do everything in their power to help a student succeed. If a student is struggling, then the teacher should help the student and even maybe pull the student aside and work with the student individually. If teachers are not helping students succeed in every way that they can, then they are not fulfilling their job and duty. If teachers would be willing to do anything, they can to help a student, I believe that it makes them a better student, and it makes teaching more meaningful. Teaching is more than just a job that is done every day. Teachers touch kids' hearts and kids look up to teachers and rely on them.

Teachers will have different cultures and backgrounds in the classroom, and I believe that the teacher should try and incorporate that somehow. One day of the teacher the teacher could have a culture day and the students could bring food from their culture and share it with their classmates. Also, kids may do things different at home and bring that to the classroom, as in burping in public, or not shutting the doors, or not saying thank you. The teacher could explain to the student that it might be okay for them to do it at their house but in the teacher's classroom it is not okay and there are different rules that the students will have to follow and the teacher should address these rules on the first day of class so the students know and understand.

I believe that the teacher should be organized and have classroom management. If the classroom is looking crazy and there is stuff everywhere, the children will act crazy. I think that there should be an everyday procedure that the students follow so they can get used to an agenda and get used to an everyday routine. I think that the classroom should have calming colors, that way when the student comes in then they are calm and not wild.

Teaching may seem like an easy job, but I believe that teaching is one of the most important jobs. Children will act like their teacher when they are little, and they will remember that teacher when they are adults. Teachers make impacts on students' lives, education, and on their hearts. Teachers may only have students for one year, but so many relationships are brought together and formed in a very short year. These children are our future, and teachers are the ones shaping these students into what the future will look like, and if teachers do not help them succeed or are not there for them when they need us, then we have failed. Teachers are looked up to and admired and teachers need to remember that.