Timeline

Version: 1.3

Publisher: International Reading Association

Target Audience: Four years and up. However, we think this is more appropriate for older students.

Curriculum: This can be used for any subject, but we think it would be most beneficial for a social studies lesson. Students can make history timelines as a project.

Cost: Free to download and use.

Description of Software: Users create their account (just by typing their name and adding a profile image). Then the user chooses which timeline they would like to create: date, time or event, and they name it. Then, they can add multiple things to the timeline using a title, short description, full description, and image. Users can save and share their work.

Impressions of Software: This app is very basic, but it gets to the point. You can't make an elaborate timeline, but it is still a timeline that is useful. It didn't crash. Overall, we liked it.

Does it pass? Yes
