| Types of Software with your Justification | Problem solving is more than just adding or subtracting problems. Problem solving apps provide information to help students think critically to problem solve. Dora the Explorer takes the user on a geographical trip where they discover countries and cultures and while doing so gain facts about these various locations. Users have to decide what animal crosses their path and what monument they have come across. This app provides a world to be explored while introducing problem solving skills. |

| Curriculum | This would be a good app to incorporate when studying geography and different cultures. A standard for students K-4 is to be able to compare global places and regions and the connections between them. Social interactions between humans and the environment are also part of standardized curriculum at the elementary level. This app introduces them to achieving these standards. |
| Cost | $2.99 |
| Description of the Software | The user gets to control where Dora the Explorer travels to. Pack your bags and take a flight to the destination of your choice. Cloth Dora in the right clothes to explore the geographic location. Help her fill up a scrapbook full of pictures and find her friend Boots. Games are designed to increase at each level. Literacy, math, and science are subject areas of focus. The user will earn stars which unlock stickers and can become expert explorers. |
| Impression of the Software | We like the aspect that Dora allows children to experience other cultures in the comfort of their home. To the user this app seems to be merely fun but without even realizing you are learning. |
| Pass APPS | Dora the Explorer passes the test. She is a great cultural influence. Games are included with travel. The program is easy to learn, navigate and provides rewards upon success. Conveniently priced but, sneaky with hidden fees to upgrade levels. |
