Description of the software: “A full stack of games, books, songs and videos specifically tailored for ages 1 through 5 will give your kids a blast of learning writing, reading, math skills and more!”

Personal review of the software: We thought this would be an example of a discovery learning app. While the student is limited to the subjects of math, reading, and writing, it allows the student the freedom to choose what they want to learn. It does not require them to go in order or pass a level before they can unlock a new topic. We liked how the app has sound and even offers a library of t.v. lessons kids can choose to watch. We also liked how there was a parent section which required the adult to hold a button for three seconds before showing them more educational apps they may be interested in, deals on their prices, and some free worksheets they can print off.

Does the app pass? No, unless you purchase because most things are locked
