

Padlet

Padlet can be used in many ways. The main way that I used it into my lesson plan was to help guide students with a flipped learning class. I think it will help to keep them on track and accountable for their learning. Students will have to add to Padlet and interact with other websites, games and videos that are shared. I think Padlet makes the class very interactive digitally which is very important for times when we may not be able to be in class.

On-Line

I have found a lot of really great on-line tools that I know I will use in my classroom. One of the online tools that I found will help you to create activities/drill and practice games for your students. You can customize the questions and answers to cater to your lesson plans or to the problem areas students may be encountering. I think this is a great way to enhance my lesson plan to make it more kid friendly, especially when it comes to younger students. One thing I disliked about my online tools is that some of them you had to pay to get better access or options. For example, Animoto video maker, you had to pay a monthly fee to have premium access to more pictures, templates and options.
