BrainPOP

Target

Audience: The publisher says that the target audience for this app are children ages 6-8. Personally, we think that this app is for kids of all ages to use.

Curriculum: This app can fit into the curriculum because it provides educational activities and quizzes over many school related topics. It does this in a way where the children can use their critical thinking skills.

Cost: This app was free in the app store. Whenever you got into the app though, there were in app purchases that you can choose from. These were either that you can pay $6.99 for a full access subscription and $2.99 for an “explorer” subscription.

Description: BrainPOP Jr. is an app that surrounds the focus of educational development for children. It offers a different “movie” every week as well as quizzes and activities for the person using the app to use and play with. There are several topics that the app gives the viewer access to learning about. These are Science, Social Studies, Reading, Writing, Math, Health, Arts, and Technology.

First Impressions: This was the first app that we loved reviewing. It is perfect for a child to develop and learn while having fun doing it. We both want to incorporate this app into our future classrooms. The app was very easy to navigate, had fun sound effects that would be appealing to a child, and the designs were creative and made the app more inviting and interesting.
