Target

Audience: The publishers say that this app is for everyone. K-12 students, parents, and teachers! We also agree, that this app can be used by everyone and anyone of all ages. This app is available in over 50 languages.

Curriculum: Class Dojo can be used in the curriculum because it allows its users to provide a classroom community between parents, students, and teachers. Teachers can share videos, photos, lessons, etc., for the parents and students to look at.

Cost: The app is free to download, but after 7 days, there will be a charge of $7.99 a month.

Description: Class Dojo is an app that provides communication between teachers, parents, and students. Anyone can log on into the app with a QR Code to see what is going on inside of the classroom. Teachers can create lessons, students can submit school work, and parents can see what their children are learning or working on.

First Impressions: We both thought that this app used a unique way to keep parents, students, and teachers involved with each other with classwork and information regarding school things. Being involved in a student's learning is key to their success in the classroom, and this app provides a gateway for the involvement to happen in a safe way.
