Description: This website provides users with step-by-step interactive games and activities. These different games promote learning in a fun and fresh way that include things the users enjoy. There are over 850 lessons. These lessons are spread out over 10 different levels. The grades are from preschool to the second grade.

Implementation Technique: At a certain point in each lesson that I teach in my classroom, there will be a time for assessing the class to check for understanding. Right before this assessment stage, I will allow my students to learn the material at their own pace as well as freshen up their memory of whatever subject it may be.

Description: This website provides users with curriculum that is geared to look more like entertainment. It appears to be just full of games that are fun, but at the same time, the students are learning because of how engaged they are.

Implementation Technique: Since this website does offer videos and games. Because of this, I will most likely find a video that goes along with my lesson. Their videos are very fun and related to the appropriate age that I need. Then after the presentation of the video to the whole class, I could play one of the games and project it onto the board while playing as a class. I could also allow my students to plan independently.

Description: This website is mainly for the younger grades consisting of kindergarten, first grade, second grade, and third grade. This website allows students to learn through exploration. It really is focused on teaching its users through positive reinforcement which sparks creativity, confidence, and motivation quickly.

Implementation Technique: I think this site has great options in their "Motion Songs" category. I think keeping my students active and awake is so important. I will most likely use the motion songs earlier in the morning every day before class begins.
