Padlet

Version: 72.0 (one)

Publisher: Wallwisher, Inc

Target Audience: The target audience is 4 and up. I would say that this software should be targeted towards an older age group because it is a bit more challenging to use.

Curriculum: A teacher could use this app for any subject area.

Cost: This app has a free version which allows the user to create up to three padlets. There is also a paid version which costs $12.99 per month or $99.99 per year.

Software description: This software allows the user to create projects that can also be shared and collaborated on as well. The user can create portfolios, lesson plans, timelines, and even blogs with this app. The app provides the user with an empty page that they can then personalize and do whatever they want with it. The user can insert a video, voice memos, pictures, and even documents into their very own padlet.

Impression of software: Overall we think that this software is very versatile and easy to use. Within this app there is a ClassKit integration which makes it easier for teachers to track their students' progress which we think is a great feature. The app was easy to navigate a create padlets.
