

Technology a Great way of Communication

Ways of Communication

Recreational Ways of Communication	Classroom Communication
Social Media	Google Classroom
Zoom and video programs	Email
Text and Calling	Remind text alerts
Skype and Facetime	Websites- Announcements

Why Communication is Important

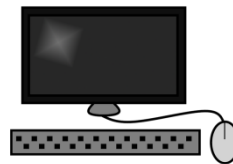

- ♥ Allows for communication outside of meeting or face to face time if there are questions or confusion
- ♥ Allows for students who have anxiety approach their teacher in a less stressful way
- ♥ Allows parents who are unable to attend functions with their child to remain updated and in touch on academics and what is happening in the classroom
- ♥ Allows students who are absent to be able to see what they missed, and stay connected with the school day
- ♥ Allows for mass communication in time of emergency or need to families from the school and administration

What I am Doing to Increase Communication

I have provided many different opportunities for my students and parents to communicate with me. My email is always available for questions or concerns about anything school or student-related. My website will be updated as information as it is presented, and a newsletter will be published and sent home monthly. I will have a Google Classroom set up where I can send announcements and updates.

How Can I Stay Connected As A Parent?

As a parent there are many ways you can stay in communication with the school, what your child is doing in class, and with me! Going to the school website is a good way to see what the school is doing, and what events are coming up! Signing up for my Remind text alerts are a good way to keep updated on what big events and projects are due in my classroom. Checking my website can allow you to stay in the loop of announcements and homework your child may have.

How I Can Stay Connected as a Student?

Much like parents stay connected, students have the same opportunities. Google Classroom will allow for messaging between students and their peers and students and I. My website has a section for students to find all they need to stay on top of assignments, homework, and the resources they need! Students can also sign up for the Remind text messages like their parents!