Types of software: Considered as a tool for people to create things, share, and collaborate with their peers.

Curriculums: Can be used for any curriculum; the teacher can come up with the project or task and the children would be able to create it using this app by sharing things with their peers; like a big discussion board.

Cost: Free downloading; $12.99/monthly or $99.99/yearly

Paragraph describing software:

This app was very interesting to use and go through. The students are able to create their own projects and collaborate with others on this app. There are so many things you can do such as, adding locations and maps to show something and adding pictures and videos.

Paragraph on impressions; how it can be used in your class:

Students can create their own project by using a blank page or a template. We can use this when we want to have a discussion within my classroom. This app allows you to comment and post on other's work, if you allow. The children can add whatever content and media they want on their template and get feedback from others.

Pass or Fail:

This app can be very useful, but you are very restricted while doing the free trial. The upgrade isn't too much, but if for a whole classroom, then it is very expensive.
