

Padlet

Padlet

- Padlet can be used for book reviews. Students have the ability to ask others questions they have about the book, include their favorite quotes, discuss their favorite characters or events in the book.
- For older elementary, Padlet can be useful when the students are planning for a persuasive essay. They can google images or ideas and then drop them in their board.
- Students can post on their own, so it would be great when doing a class discussion about the lesson. They can incorporate what they think the topic is being discussed.

Online Tools

Online tools are very, very helpful in the classroom. There are so many to choose from that are accustomed to all students. These online tools allow students a different approach to curriculum besides just using paper. However, the students do need to know that it can't be used all the time and it is not an award. It is for learning. It also needs to be routine, though. This way, students are familiar with how to use each one. I like everything about online tools except that a lot of them require the teacher to have an account. This can lead to so many passwords and emails from each that it might become a little overwhelming.
